THE CITY OF NEW YORK

The University of the City of New York consists of a college and a university. The college is a liberal arts college founded in 1863. The university, founded in 1897, is a research university with departments of law, medicine, pharmacy, engineering, political science, and education.

The relationship between the college and the university is the senior year of the college, which year students in the college complete their studies with the college and then enter the university for the remainder of their education.

Several schools are under the charge of other non-academic entities, except that the schools of Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Engineering are all under the charge of the City of New York. The schools of Law and Medicine are under the charge of the City of New York, while the schools of Pharmacy and Engineering are under the charge of the State of New York.
